DRAFTING CLEARER CONTRACTS ON DEMAND

Materials

3 November 2026

Published	To come

News
1.	Welcome to Drafting Clearer Contracts: On Demand (here)
2.	On Demand Update: September 2026
Setting the Scene
3.	A Bit About Me
4.	Be an Informed Consumer of Contract Language!
5.	Mainstream Contract Drafting Is Dysfunctional
6.	Why No One Critiques My Recommendations
7.	What About Artificial Intelligence?
8.	The Manual's Guidelines Apply Internationally
9.	What's the Role of Caselaw in Contract Drafting?
10.	Deciding on Contract Language Shouldn't Be Just for Lawyers
11.	What Topics Do the Videos Cover?
Making Change Happen
12.	Inertia at the Level of the Individual
13.	Inertia at the Level of the Organization
14.	Implementing Change If You're the One Drafting
15.	Implementing Change When Reviewing
16.	Why "A Manual of Style for Contract Drafting" Isn't a Style Guide, and Why that Probably Doesn't Matter
17.	Instead of Copy-and-Pasting, Make a Fresh Start
The Characteristics of Optimal Contract Language
18.	Contract Language Shouldn't Be Archaic
19.	Contract Language Shouldn't Be Legalistic
20.	Contract Language Shouldn't Be Confusing

21.	Contract Language Should Express Ideas without Redundancy
22.	Contract Language Shouldn't Repeat Itself
23.	Contract Language Should Be Consistent
24.	Contract Language Should Be Concise
25.	Contract Language Should Be Accessible
26.	Contract Language Shouldn't Seek to Persuade
27.	Contract Language Should Be Restrained in Attempting to Preempt Judicial Discretion
28.	Contract Language Should Serve a Useful Purpose
29.	Don't Expect Contract Language to Be Simple
The Front of the Contract
30.	Choosing the Title of a Contract
31.	Using "Agreement and Plan of Merger" as a Title
32.	Date a Contract Using the Date It's Signed, Not a Date Based on Timing of Performance
33.	The Strange Story of "Between" Versus "Among" in the Introductory Clause
34.	Use "The" with Party-Name Defined Terms That Consist of a Common Noun
35.	Don't Use "Party" As a Defined Term
36.	Don't use "This Agreement" as a Defined Term
37.	Using Recitals to Tell a Story
38.	"Intending to Be Legally Bound" Should be Irrelevant
39.	Don't Give Headings to the Parts of the Front of the Contract
40.	All-Capitals Archaisms in the Recitals and the Lead-In
41.	Get Rid of Recitals of Consideration
42.	More Silliness from Backstop Recitals of Consideration: Good and Valuable Consideration
	The Front of the Contract (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: General
43.	"The Categories of Contract Language" Is the Antidote to Verb-Structure Chaos
44.	Be Systematic in Applying the Categories-of-Contract-Language Framework
45.	Use the Third Person in Business Contracts

46.	The Active Voice and the Passive Voice
	The Active Voice and the Passive Voice (Quiz)
	The Active Voice and the Passive Voice (Advanced Quiz)
47.	Throat-Clearing!
	Throat-Clearing! (Quiz)
48.	Consolidating Deal Points
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Performance
49.	Language of Performance*
50.	Using Language of Performance to Express Performing Services
51.	Using Language of Performance for Granting Language
	Language of Performance (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Obligation
52.	Language of Obligation Imposed on the Subject of a Sentence
53.	Overuse of "Shall"*
54.	The "Has a Duty" Test
55.	Some Verb Structures Not to Use for Expressing Obligations
56.	Language of Obligation Imposed on Someone Other Than the Subject of a Sentence*
57.	Using "Shall Cause"
58.	If Complying with an Obligation Is Uncertain or Impossible
59.	Imposing Obligations to Stop Something from Happening
60.	Some Related Obligations Terminology (Including "Covenant")
	Language of Obligation (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Discretion
61.	Using "May" to Grant Discretion
62.	Don't Use "May" for Discretion That Doesn't Arise Under the Contract
63.	Be Explicit Whether Discretion Is Limited
64.	The Ambiguity in "May ... Only"
65.	Using "May" to Express an Exclusive Option
66.	Using "Might", Not "May", to Express Possibility
67.	"May Require" and "May Request"
68.	Don't Use "At Its Sole Discretion" with "May"*
69.	When Exercising Discretion Depends on Another's Obligation

70.	“Is Not Required To”
71.	“Is Not Prohibited From”
	Language of Discretion (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Prohibition
72.	“Shall Not”
73.	Expressing Prohibition Using Collective Nouns
74.	Expressing Prohibition Using an Exception to Language of Discretion or Obligation
	Language of Prohibition (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Policy
75.	Verbs in Language of Policy
76.	Buried-Actor Policies
77.	Use of the Passive Voice
78.	Using Language of Policy to Obfuscate
	Language of Policy (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Expressing Conditions
79.	Relevant Terminology for Expressing Conditions
80.	Three Ways of Expressing Conditions
81.	A Condition Doesn’t Make Sense If It Can Be Ignored
82.	A Condition Might Not Be the Only Condition
The Categories of Contract Language: Expressing Conditions Using a Conditional Clause
83.	Structure and Function
84.	The Position of the Conditional Clause
85.	Using an “If … Then” Structure
86.	Verbs in the Conditional Clause and the Matrix Clause
87.	Choosing Between Positive and Negative in the Matrix Clause
	Expressing Conditions Using a Conditional Clause (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Expressing Conditions Using Language of Obligation
88.	Using “Must”
	Expressing Conditions Using Language of Obligation (Quiz)

The Categories of Contract Language: Expressing Conditions Using Language of Policy
89.	Structure and Verb
	Expressing Conditions Using Language of Policy (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Declaration
90.	The Two Kinds of Assertion of Fact
91.	Using "Represents and Warrants"
92.	The Remedies Rationale for "Represents and Warrants"
93.	The Timeframe Rationale for "Represents and Warrants"
94.	English Law and Practice Regarding "Represents and Warrants"
95.	"Represents and Warrants" Is Conducive to Disorder
96.	Using "States" Instead of "Represents and Warrants"
97.	Addressing Remedies Directly
98.	Don't Use Future Facts
99.	Some Terminology Relating to Statements of Fact
	Language of Declaration (Quiz)
The Categories of Contract Language: Language of Intention
100.	What Happened to "Language of Intention"?
The Categories of Contract Language: "Shall" and "May" in Restrictive Relative Clauses
101.	"Shall" and "May" in Restrictive Relative Clauses
The Categories of Contract Language: Dual Verb Structures
102.	Don't Use Dual Verb Structures
The Categories of Contract Language: Using the Simple Present for Habitual Activity
103.	Using the Simple Present for Habitual Activity
Layout
104.	A Word About Layout
The Back of the Contract
105.	Two Kinds of Concluding Clause, or No Concluding Clause
106.	Strange Stuff in Traditional Concluding Clauses

Defined Terms
107.	The Purpose of Defined Terms
108.	Don't Define Terms in the Singular and Plural
109.	Don't Use Alternative Defined Terms
110.	Use Initial Capitals for Defined Terms
111.	A Word About Autonomous Definitions and Integrated Definitions
112.	Definitional Verbs for Autonomous Definitions
113.	Don't Stuff Autonomous Definitions
114.	Don't Use Reverse Autonomous Definitions
115.	Clarifying the Scope of Integrated Definitions
116.	Whether to Define a Term in a Definition Section or On-Site*
117.	Where to Put a Definition Section
118.	Cross-Referring to Definitions*
119.	The Value of Defined Terms Should Exceed Their Cost
	Defined Terms (Quiz)
Sources of Uncertain Meaning in Contract Language
120.	Ambiguity of the Specific Versus the General?
	Identify the Source of Uncertain Meaning (Quiz)
"Reasonable Efforts" and Its Variants
121.	The Function of "Efforts" Standards
122.	The Components of "Efforts" Standards
123.	What People Think "Efforts" Standards Mean
124.	Caselaw on Differences Between "Efforts" Standards
125.	Why a Hierarchy of "Efforts" Standards Is Unworkable
126.	The Elements of Misinterpretation
127.	How to Draft "Efforts" Provisions
128.	Defining "Reasonable Efforts"
129.	Negotiating "Efforts" Provisions
	"Reasonable Efforts" and Its Variants (Quiz)
"Material" and "Material Adverse Change"
130.	"Material" Is Not Only Vague, It's Also Ambiguous
131.	The Latest on "In All Material Respects"
132.	Double Materiality Is a Nonissue

	"Material" and "Material Adverse Change" (Quiz)
References to Time
133.	A Taxonomy of References to Time
134.	Join the Day-Month-Year Revolution!
135.	"Date" and "Day"
136.	Prepositions Used to Refer to a Day
137.	When in a Day a Point in Time Occurs
138.	Avoiding Confusion by Stating the Time of Day
139.	The Time of Day as a Boundary Between Periods of Time
140.	Saying Which Time Zone Applies
141.	How Long You Have for Taking Action After an Event Occurs
142.	Backward- and Forward-Looking Periods of Time
143.	Don't Use Confusing Points in Time
144.	Don't Use "Within"
145.	Which Unit of Time to Use
146.	Using "Not Less Than" to State a Period of Time
147.	Using a Time of Day for the End of a Period of Time
148.	"During the Period"
149.	"Will Have" Plus a Period of Time
150.	Apportioning Quantities Per Unit of Time: Possible Meanings
151.	Apportioning Quantities Per Unit of Time: Handling Short Periods
152.	Apportioning Units of Time
153.	References to Time: Some Words and Phrases*
154.	Avoiding Confusion by Adding a Time Component
	References to Time (Quiz)
Ambiguity of the Part Versus the Whole
155.	Ambiguity of the Part Versus the Whole: An Introduction
	Ambiguity of the Part Versus the Whole (Quiz)
Syntactic Ambiguity
156.	Syntactic Ambiguity: An Introduction
157.	Right-Node-Raising Pivot Ambiguity!
	Syntactic Ambiguity (Quiz)

Selected Usages
158.	Fluff Words (Including “Actively”, “Actually”, and “Affirmatively”)
159.	Legalistic Words (Including “Abrogate”, “Allonge”, and “Attorn”)
160.	“Arising Out Of or Relating To”
161.	“As Amended”
162.	“As Liquidated Damages and Not as a Penalty”
163.	“Automatically”
164.	“Basis” (Including “Timely”)
165.	“Certify”
166.	“Consequential Damages”
167.	“Coupled with an Interest”
168.	Curing Breach
169.	“Deem”
170.	“Default”
171.	“Disclaim”
172.	“During the Term of this Agreement”
173.	“End”, “Terminate”
174.	“Execute and Deliver”
175.	“Fails To”
176.	“For Any Reason or No Reason”	NEW
177.	“For the Avoidance of Doubt”	NEW
178.	“Form and Substance”	NEW
179.	“Formal”, “Formally”	NEW
180.	“From the Beginning of Time”	NEW
181.	“Guarantee”, “Guaranty”	NEW
182.	“Guarantee” (The Verb) as a Term of Art	NEW
183.	“Including”—How It’s Used	NEW
184.	“Including”—Don’t Introduce an Illustrative List	NEW
185.	“Including”—What Otherwise Wouldn’t Be Part of the Class	NEW
186.	“Including”—The Effect of a Class Modifier	NEW
187.	“Incorporated by Reference”	NEW
188.	Indemnification—Its Function	NEW
189.	Indemnification—Usages*	NEW

190.	Indemnification—Not Using the Word “Indemnify”	NEW
191.	“Joint and Several”	NEW
192.	“Knowledge”	NEW
193.	Latinisms	NEW
194.	“Legal Fees”	NEW
195.	“Likely”	NEW
Numbers and Formulas
Internal Rules of Interpretation
Typography
Drafting as Writing		